THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 19, 1867.

For Sheriff or Anything Else—Mr. Peter Lyle.

Mr. PETER LYLE, after twenty years of service in the ranks of the ward politicians, and after having been a candidate for all the offices under the corporation, from precinct judge, up or down, now comes once more before the people of our city as the Democratic nominee for the office of Sheriff. The persistency with which this gentleman has sought for office leads us to believe that he has adopted the Scriptural advice given to the priests of Baal, and, considering the people as a god, goes on the principle that it is necessary to "cry aloud for he may be hunting, or peradventure he sleepeth."

However, letting the dead past bury its dead, we will look at the claims of Mr. Lyle to the office which while we write he is aiming at. If we understand his claims properly, he bases them on his military services, and declares all those not inclined to yield to his demand as "radical rascals."

If, however, a soldier and a civilian were presented for a nomination, and were each surrounded by equally unobjectionable elements, we would give the preference to the soldier. But if the success of the soldier would mean not a success of the war doctrine, but exactly the reverse; if the election of a soldier would not place in power the principles for which that soldier should have fought; if by giving him victory the soldier would get one office and a dozen soldiers give place to a dozen enemies of the Republic, then we say that the Republican who would vote for that soldier is as false to his principles as the soldier is to the great cause for which he fought.

Again, Mr. Lyle has demonstrated his unfitness for the post in the present disordered condition of our country, by the violent temper he has exhibited, and the brutal manner in which he has attacked all who are his opponents. For a Sheriff to call half our citizens "radical rascals" is both insulting and dangerous. We do not know what we are doing if we place this man in power. Suppose that the madman at the White House should proceed to carry out some of his wild schemes. Suppose the promised coup d'etat should turn out to be a reality, and not a myth—then we would see a scene of wild disorder in all the cities of the land.

We have written calmly, and have not uttered one word against Mr. Lyle's personal character, or infringed one jot or one tittle on any but public grounds. Yet we think w have said enough to cause our people to pause ere they vote against our nominee and in favor of a fiery-tempered and imperious man, who might do us great danger in case of a difficulty, and who certainly would give all the patronage of his office to the "almy things" whom we spurned from beneath our feet for the past six years of war.

Our National Honor.

The recent utterances of certain of our public men in regard to their views on the subject of the national finances are calculated to cause both regret and surprise. Speaking as individuals, and not as party leaders, they have proclaimed doctrines which, if uttered by any business man, would not only weaken, but absolutely ruin his credit. It would be grossly unjust to hold either of the great parties of the country responsible for the sentiments declared by members not authorized to speak in their behalf; yet, even when not binding a party, it is greatly injurious to the national credit, and to the personal honor of the speakers, to hold such views as those expressed by either Mr. Pendleton or General Butler. Let us look for a moment at the doctrine taught by each. Mr. Pendleton proposes the payment of the outstanding loans by issuing greenbacks to the extent of $2,200,000,000; thus relieving the nation from the payment of interest on the bonds, and flooding the country with promises to pay, which it would be impossible to redeem. In such an event we would renew the days of Continental currency, when a breakfast cost $500 in shillings.

So long have the people been accustomed to paper money, that party leaders seek to impress them with the idea that specie is merely an article of merchandise, valuable when needed for payment of importations, and useless as a domestic medium of exchange. Credit must be based upon some sound foundation. One will not lend his neighbor a large sum of money without a security bond upon that neighbor's property, such as land or houses, ships, produce, or cattle, raw material or manufactured goods. And even upon these, with the exception of land, there is a perishable risk that must be covered by insurance.

The United States Government, in order to preserve its existence, borrowed large sums of money, no matter from whom, whether from its own citizens or from foreign capitalists. It gave in return its own bonds secured by the resources of the nation, public lands, revenue imports, and, above all, by the honor of the American people, to redeem these bonds at certain periods. It issued promises to pay on demand in the shape of greenbacks, and pledged its reputation for their payment. As such payments cannot be made in kind, specie is the only medium used in civilized nations. High rates may have been paid for these loans. The merchant frequently is obliged to pay one-and-a-half per cent. per month for money, while legal interest is only half per cent. a month—but what of that? It relieves him from present embarrassment, and enables him to fulfill his obligations, and to reach a prosperous position in his business. So this nation was in great danger from intestine enemies. It could not perform the obligation of preserving its existence without money to buy arms and ammunition and food and raiment for its brave soldiers. The value of the American Union is priceless. No sum could be too great to expend in its defense. No mathematician could calculate its worth. And now that the war is over, who, for the sake of avoiding the payment of the debt, would be willing to place us in the condition we must have had had the Rebels succeeded? Our very blood boils at the thought. Could terms of condemnation be found sufficiently strong, if a patient whose life had been saved by the skill of his physician refused to pay the compensation due for such service, although fully competent to do so? Shall we, after the victory is gained—the triumph achieved—and the proud position before the world we have obtained—degrade our manhood by repudiating in any form the obligations we have incurred in reaching this apex? So much for the proposition from the Democratic leaders.

General Butler advises the consolidation of the national bonds into one conglomerate, and obliging the holders to receive the interest in greenbacks. This is but a shade less dark than Mr. Pendleton's plan of repudiation. As before stated, the obligation to pay the principal in specie, or its equivalent, is binding, and if so, certainly the interest must be paid in the same. Although no admirer of English statesmanship generally, we must say that the British system of consolidation, adopted after the wars with Napoleon, would be much more honorable and practicable. That is, offer the holders at maturity of the bonds the option of taking back the principal in coin or of accepting in lieu a new bond of the United States, payable at a distant period, with a lower rate of interest—say four per cent.—both payable in specie.

It may be asserted that we have not the means with which to pay those who might refuse the new loan and demand specie payment. Such an emergency would not occur, as nearly all the foreign holders would gladly accept the proposal—for they could not obtain as high a rate on a long loan in Europe—and the status of America's credit would be so strengthened that fresh capital from abroad and at home would seek the new issue, and fill the vacuum created for the moment by those who had withdrawn their loans.

In the meantime, let us maintain our character among nations by paying the semi-annual coupons in gold, and, as far as possible, annually reduce the aggregate of the debt. We hope that politicians will not hold our people in such low estimation as to imagine that popularity can be reached by favoring repudiation.

The ex-Rebels and their Northern allies may applaud such efforts, but the friends of the Union and of liberty will never so far forget their duty to their fellow-men and the sacred injunction to pay what they owe.

"The Wind Taken Out of their Sails."

The New York Tribune to-day contains a few statistics, which we commend to our Democratic neighbor in Chesnut street. As figures cannot lie, we see what cause there is for the jubilant outbursts of joy which are being continually sent up by the Democracy. Without further comment, we let the figures teach the truth:

For robust and unblushing falsification of the Democratic journals bear the palm. For instance, here is a paragraph that seems to be kept as a standing advertisement in most of the organs of that faith:

DEMOCRATIC GAINS FOR 1867. The following are the Democratic gains in round numbers since last spring:—

DEMOCRATIC VOTE IN 1866 AND 1867. States. 1866. 1867. Gain.

In the first table the Democratic claim for the States we have given above, a gain of 40,000 votes. We show by actual returns that cannot be disputed, that their entire gain is only two thousand, or not quite one per cent. All this shamless crowing over pretended gains is done to affect the result in Pennsylvania and Ohio; but they must be very tame birds which can be caught with such craft.

"WHEN we look on your battle fields and think of the brave men on both sides who have fallen in the fierce struggle of battle, and who sleep in their graves, would to God we of the living could emulate their example as they lie sleeping in their tombs."—Mr. Johnson's Speech at Annetam.

—Well, Mr. President, the consummation so devoutly wished for is within your reach. This mortal coil could be shuffled off. Whether you would rest in peace, however, is an insoluble proposition. But should you carry your prayer into effect, we do not think much powder would be wasted in minute guns, or much noise be made by the tolling of bells.

DEATH OF SIR FREDERICK BRUCE.—Elsewhere we announce the sudden death of Sir Frederick W. A. Bruce, Envoy Extraordinary to the United States. The Baronet has for four years represented his Court in this country, where he succeeded Lord Lyons. He was an able and experienced diplomat, and was exceedingly popular with his fellow-ministers. His course at Washington has given general satisfaction to the United States Government.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN SAID ON THE battle-field of Gettysburg:—"The world will little note nor long remember what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us, the living, rather to be dedicated here to the unfinished work that they have so nobly carried on. It is for us, the living, rather to be dedicated to the great work remaining before us."

The great unfinished work of reconstruction, on the basis of equal justice, remains to be done by the American people. The popular heart means that the work shall go on, that its triumph shall be speedy and perfect. The Republican campaign opens at Frankford, in the Twenty-third Ward, on SATURDAY evening, the 21st, at 8 o'clock. A Ward meeting is anticipated. The speakers who have promised to attend are:—

Ex-Governor JAMES POLLOCK, Hon. JAMES M. SCOVILL, General JOSEPH T. OWEN, Hon. WILLIAM B. MANN, A. W. HENZEY, Esq., Colonel JAMES H. HENZEY, and others. GEORGE G. STOCK, Chairman of Executive Committee.
